Share Capital and Shares:

Article 3

The Company's share capital amounts to DKK 57,000,000. The share capital is fully paid up.

This share capital is divided up into an ordinary share capital of DKK 5,640,000 and a preference share capital of DKK 51,360,000.

The ordinary share capital is divided into shares of DKK 1,000 or multiples thereof.

The preference share capital, DKK 51,360,000, is divided into shares of DKK 100 or multiples thereof.

The preference shares shall be quoted on NASDAQ OMX Copenhagen A/S and registered with a securities depository. The securities depository in question shall issue and register these shares in accordance with the statutory provisions regarding the issuing of listed securities.

The ordinary shares shall only be issued to registered holders. The shares may not be transferred to bearer, and they shall always be recorded in the name of the holder in the Company's Register of Shareholders. A transfer of ordinary shares is only effective when recorded in the Company's Register of Shareholders. The ordinary shares are non-negotiable securities, and they shall be marked to that effect in an unambiguous and clear way.

The following limitations apply to the negotiability of the ordinary shares:

Ordinary shares may only be sold to other ordinary shareholders, transferred to other holders by inheritance or advancement, or contributed to funds if invested by the founders themselves. Apart from the above-mentioned cases the ordinary shares cannot be disposed of without the Board of Directors' prior consent, which shall be in writing.

The preference shares are freely negotiable. They shall be issued to bearer, but they may be recorded in the name of the holder or holders in the Company's Register of Shareholders. The Company's Register of Shareholders shall be kept by VP Investor Services, CVR number 30 20 11 83. The preference shares are negotiable securities.

Holders of preference shares shall have the right to an advance distribution of a cumulative dividend of 6%. When the preference share capital has been given a 6% annual dividend, a similar dividend percentage shall be paid to holders of ordinary shares. If further dividends are made payable, ordinary shares and preference shares are entitled to the same dividend percentage.

In case of liquidation holders of preference shares shall be paid before holders of ordinary shares. When both holders of ordinary shares and preference shares have been paid in full in case of liquidation, any surplus remaining on winding up shall be distributed to the two share classes in proportion to the nominal value of the shares.

Apart from the provisions of this Article, the provisions of Article 8 regarding voting rights, and the provisions of Article 12 regarding the election of members to the Board of Directors, no shares shall carry any special rights.

No shareholder shall be under an obligation to allow his or her shares to be redeemed whether in whole or in part.

The ordinary share capital and the preference share capital may be increased at the same time or separately – as for the ordinary share capital only in the case set out below.

When the ordinary and preference share capitals are increased simultaneously, the existing proportion of voting rights held by ordinary shareholders and preference shareholder must be upheld. At the Company's General Meeting it must not be changed to the detriment of the preference shareholders.

When the Company decides to increase its capital in order to pay – in whole or in part - for a takeover of an existing business, or in order to offer its employees preference shares, the existing shareholders shall have no right to a proportionate amount of the Company's new shares. In all other cases of capital increase the existing shareholders shall have the right to acquire a proportionate amount of the Company's new shares (pre-emptive right):

If the ordinary and preference share capitals are increased simultaneously, the existing holders of ordinary shares shall have a pre-emptive right to acquire new ordinary shares, and the existing holders of preference shares shall have a pre-emptive right to acquire new preference shares.

If only the preference share capital is increased, the existing holders of preference shares shall have a pre-emptive right to acquire new preference shares. Are the existing preference shareholders granted a pre-emptive right to acquire new shares in connection with an increase of the preference share capital, the ordinary share capital may be increased alone at a later date, and the existing shareholders shall have a pre-emptive right to acquire new ordinary shares. In all other cases the ordinary share capital cannot be increased alone.

In the above-mentioned situation where the existing holders of preference shares were granted a pre-emptive right to acquire new shares, the ordinary share capital may only be increased by the same percentage by which the preference share capital was increased. The terms and conditions regarding price and payment, which were effective at the previous increase in the preference share capital, shall also apply.

Article 4

The ordinary shares shall be supplied with coupon sheets and a talon. New coupon sheets shall in due course be received in exchange for the talon.

When the Annual General Meeting has adopted the audited Annual Report, the annual ordinary share dividend shall be paid at the head office of the Company on presentation of the coupon sheets in question. As far as the preference shares are concerned the declared dividend shall be paid - with effect of discharge for the Company - into the account with a depository bank as stated in the Register of Shareholders or registered with a securities depository.

The Company shall not be held responsible if the bearer of the coupon sheet or the holder registered with a securities depository should turn out to be the unrightful owner.

Ordinary share dividend, which has not been claimed three years after the date of redemption, shall accrue to the Company's liquid reserve fund, unless otherwise provided by obsolescence law, and the coupons in question shall subsequently not be accepted by the Company. Preference share dividend, which has not been withdrawn from the shareholder's dividend account three years after the date of redemption, shall accrue to the Company's liquid reserve fund, unless otherwise provided by obsolescence law.

Article 5

The Company's ordinary share certificates may be cancelled without a court order pursuant to the current legislation on non-negotiable securities.

Cancellation of ordinary share certificates shall be initiated at the request of and at the expense of the registered holder or the person who otherwise proves that he or she is the owner of the lost ordinary share certificate.

The new ordinary share certificate shall be issued pursuant to the current rules and regulations of the Danish Companies Act and the Company's present Articles of Association.
